Dear residents,

New investigation required after fire engineer suspended

I have some disappointing news to share with you regarding the EWS1 form we have received for your building. Tri Fire, the fire engineering firm which signed your documents is now being rejected by some lenders if their name is on the document. We now will need to appoint another fire engineering firm to carry out another review and issue a new EWS1 Form. We have provided more detail below.

Background

We wrote to you following government guidance that building owners need to investigate their buildings' external wall system to determine if the construction method was satisfactory in line with the Government's methodology for appraising External Wall and Cladding Construction (PAS9980). We went through a rigorous procurement process to appoint a selection of fire engineering firms to carry out the necessary investigations, known as a FRAEW – Fire Risk Appraisal External Wall. Buildings were then issued with an EWS1 form – External Wall System – which determined the fire risk of a building and if remediation was required.

In your building's case, we appointed an organisation called Tri Fire to carry out the investigation and sign the EWS1 form. The individual who undertook and signed off the assessment had the requisite qualifications to sign off an EWS1 Form, being an Incorporated Engineer (IEng) of the Institute of Fire Engineers, and was on the Homes England list of approved Engineers. We have since been informed that an individual who has signed the forms was initially suspended from his professional body, the Institution of Fire Engineers (IFE). There have also been allegations of fraud made and earlier this month the individual has been expelled from IFE.

We understand some lenders have withdrawn mortgage offers on flats where documents have been signed by Tri Fire. We also understand there may be some lenders such as Santander still be offering mortgages where additional information is provided by landlords about the assessments undertaken and how any remediation work will be funded.

Due to these circumstances, we have made the difficult decision to reinvestigate your building's external wall system. I know this will come as difficult news, but I hope you can understand why we must do this, as we must be able to rely on these documents, and your safety is our priority.

A summary of this letter

The fire engineer from Tri Fire that signed the EWS1 form has been expelled from his professional body (IFE). Some lenders are also withdrawing mortgage offers if Tri Fire has signed fire safety documents.

We will therefore be appointing a new fire engineering firm to provide a new EWS1 form for your buildings.

We will write to you again once we have a new fire engineer and date confirmed.

A reminder

Your building's fire strategy is stay put, so you should stay in your home unless you are directly affected by smoke, heat or fire, or are told to evacuate by the fire brigade. There is no communal alarm in the building.

- Go to the London Fire Brigade's website, which is offering a free online tool which guides you through a fire risk assessment of your home (home visits are available for more vulnerable residents): <https://www.london-fire.gov.uk/safety/the-home/home-fire-safety/>
- Visit our website where we have a building safety section with lots of information and frequently asked questions: <https://www.networkhomes.org.uk/buildingandfiresafety/>
